India has a great tradition in the field of scholarship, philosophy and science. To uphold this tradition in the field of health is a challenging responsibility of health professionals. India needs to find out her own approaches and strategies to solve our health problems. Transforming this challenge into a reality, lies in the hands of our young medical students, the health professionals of tomorrow. They need to be confidently equipped with the right kind of research skills in order to develop a problem solving ability. A slow revolution of this research culture is already in progress in different parts of India. Providing a platform to bring to limelight these research efforts by our budding stars is the need of the hour. We, the department of Community Medicine had made a humble attempt to provide such a venue through our first National Conference held on 11th and 12th of April 2008. Gaining confidence and encouragement from the overwhelming response we received for the last conference, we proudly announce the arrival of the 2nd National Conference for students Medical Research on 9th and 10th of January 2009.

Our theme for this years conference is “Towards a healthier India”. Our endeavour focuses on providing a venue for undergraduate and post graduate Medical students to present and discuss their research findings and improve their research skills. We hope to bring together research from diverse competing fields in health namely communicable and noncommunicable diseases , environmental health, mental health etc, from different parts of the nation .We envisage the fostering of genuine interest and the right attitude among young medical professionals, which shall eventually snowball into a research culture and evidence based medical practice in India.

The scientific deliberations during the conference include theme based presentations by guest speakers and free paper presentations by student researchers.

Undergraduate and post graduate students who wish to participate may register their names on or before 1st December 2008. Those who wish to present papers during the conference may submit their abstracts on or before 10th December 2008.
